

62 AW/CC Roll Call

24 July 2014

Team McChord,

Last month, the 62d AW hosted the C-17 Mobility Air Forces Council where I, along with the other C-17 wing commanders, discussed the operational impacts of force management. Big thanks to Lt Col Brian Wald and his team in Wing Training for providing us good, solid decision-quality data to help us develop our recommendations to AMC. As we continue to assess the impacts of force management, we must also ensure that our Airmen and families leaving active duty are prepared for transition to the private sector. We are extremely fortunate here at JBLM to have robust transition assistance programs that serve as competitive off-ramps for Airmen entering the civilian workforce. Finally, with great change comes great opportunity. All of us must do our part to develop our Generation Next Airmen—Airmen who are prepared to take our Air Force well into the future. Whether it is through existing training or professional development programs, all of us should look for those opportunities to make our Airmen better...to make our Air Force better. It starts with you!

On the Horizon...

Free Movie at the Beach! [26 July]

Who doesn't enjoy Christmas in July? Come out to Shoreline Park on Lewis North and enjoy a free showing of National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation. Movie starts at dusk.

Go Hawks!

Stop by Leisure Travel Services (LTS) before 26 July to enter your name into their drawing to become eligible to purchase Seahawk tickets. LTS is located at 2275 Liggett Ave. inside the AFC Arena.

CSAF American Airman Video Contest (AAVC)

By now, I am sure you have seen the "I am an American Airman" commercials highlighting some of the great work Airmen do for our nation. Now you have an opportunity to tell YOUR AF story thru General Welsh's AAVC. Contestants have until 31 July to self-record a 30-second or less video that tells their Air Force stories...what they do, why they joined, or why they love being an Airman. Upload your videos to YouTube where fellow Airmen will eventually vote for the winner. Contact 62 AW/PA for more details.
